

Contents

Andreas Marklund & Mogens Rüdiger	5
Historicizing Infrastructure. After the Material Turn
Anna Harris	21
Sounds like Infrastructure. Examining the Vibrant Materiality of Pneumatic Tube Systems Through Their Sonic Traces
Zef Segal	51
Post and Railway ‘Right of Way’. Infrastructures as Delimitators of Voluntary Territorial Identities in Mid-Nineteenth-Century Germany
Paul Yandle	83
“The Shrill Voice of the Iron Horse”. Railroad Gauge Wars and Cultural Stasis in Western North Carolina, 1854 –1910
Carlos López Galviz	115
The Futures That Never Were. Railway Infrastructure and Housing in Mid-Nineteenth-Century London and Paris

Andreas Marklund	137
A Stake in Public Confidence. Communications Privacy and the Interests of the State during the Establishment of Modern Telecommunications in Denmark
Elizabeth Bruton	159
The Cable Wars. Military and State Surveillance of the British Telegraph Cable Network During World War One
Sanne Aagaard Jensen	183
Connecting the Alliance. Communications Infrastructure on the NATO Agenda in the 1950s
Patryk Wasiak	211
Shadow Clientele. The Materiality of Satellite Television in Poland during the Transition from State Socialism to Market Economy	